Why this book is good

- Visualisation. 'It is impossible to think without a mental picture.' Aristotle, 348BC
- A string of words becomes meaningful when its 'picture' can be seen in the mind's eye.
- Reading with a partner shares the enjoyment as well as helps with low-stress high-impact revision and learning pleasure.
- Discussion helps build the pleasures of human interaction and conversation through what is said, written, implied and shared.
- This is a vocabulary-building and conversation-stimulus book.
- Partner work is invaluable for incorporating oral, visual, aural and emotional well-being within the reading-together process.
- The mind needs practice manipulating visualised images triggered by words if there is to be an assimilation and adaptation of new knowledge with what is already known.
